Linear and Habitat for Humanity are “Building for the Brave”

The new build project will provide housing outfitted with state-of-the-art finishings adapted to the needs of disabled veterans.

Carlsbad, CA – October 8, 2013 –Linear LLC employees recently volunteered with framing and other build efforts during a San Diego Habitat for Humanity (SDHFH) Building for the Brave project in Lakeside, CA. With the help of Linear and many other volunteers and sponsors, SDHFH is providing four townhomes for affordable homeownership by disabled veterans and their families. When complete, the homes will feature technology and furnishings donated by Linear and others to create a highly functional living space. Applications are still being accepted for interested veterans, details available here.

15 Linear volunteers donated time on October 5th to help with framing and structural work for the townhomes, which are scheduled to be complete in the summer of 2014. Living in the San Diego area, as most Linear employees do, makes it easy to see how important the military is to the area and to recognize the sacrifices our servicemen and women make. Linear offers veteran’s additional support via an intern and hiring program set up to help members of the military find work once they’ve completed service.

“We’re thankful for the Linear employees who brought construction and home building experience to this important phase of our Building for the Brave project,” said SDHFH director of development Elizabeth Berg. “Without the help of volunteers, our mission of bringing people together to build homes, communities and hope wouldn’t be possible.”

“The Linear team members who volunteered for this important cause should feel proud they are doing something to help repay those who serve with honor and literally sacrifice their bodies for our country,” said Michael O’Neal, Linear president. “Habitat for Humanity does amazing work around the world and we’re proud to support the Building for the Brave project.”

With a legacy of support for the Carlsbad area, in the last year Linear has embarked upon a several community-building initiatives, including: a food drive for the San Diego Food Bank that raised over 6,000 lbs. of non-perishables, a Meals-on-Wheels event sponsorship and various donations to benefit the athletic programs for Carlsbad's two public high schools.
