"As an IoT software company, SecureNet is constantly focused on improving the customer experience," says Andrew Wilson, CEO at SecureNet. "The in-app installation and user experience we bring to the 2GIG Rely system provides a market leading solution for both DIY and professional installations. The in-app wizard tools ensure a completely seamless and simple setup of both Rely and video cameras. This innovation via a white-labeled, end-user app allows our Dealer partners to differentiate themselves in the fast-growing DIY market. NSC was already a strategic partner, so it was an easy decision to work with them in bringing such a fantastic solution to the DIY space," Wilson continued. "The 2GIG Rely system offers quality and reliability, with a robust and sleek design that you would expect from a leading security company."

"For NSC, customers come first, so we listen closely to our customers and their end-users. They want ease of installation and use without compromising on functionality or security," said Jim Poder, VP Product Management at NSC. "We leveraged these insights to develop this enhanced variant on the 2GIG Rely panel. SecureNet is one of the best technology companies out there, and their professional and easy-to-use software platform and app provide unmatched value to our dealers and end-users."
